IN A NUTSHELL:

St. Louis opens its home season as two defending regular-season division champs collide.

ALL-TIME SERIES:

North Iowa leads, 14-6-2 (Bulls last season: OT, SO loss at St. Louis, two wins at home; teams have split last eight meetings).

LAST WEEK'S RECAP:

North Iowa comes into this weekend off of another split, this time between two West Division foes. Last Friday, the Rochester Grizzlies did what the Rochester Ice Hawks were unable to do in 22 all-time meetings with the Bulls: beat them. The Grizzlies took down the Bulls on home ice with a 3-1 victory, thanks to a hat trick from Rochester's Richard Szabo. Peter Verstegen did tie the game halfway through the second period on a shorthanded goal, his third special-teams marker of the season. However, Szabo reclaimed the lead for Rochester with just 1:02 remaining in the second period on his second goal of the night. Evan Babekuhl made 47 saves in the loss, but second-year Rochester goalie Nick Bucklin earned the win with 27 stops. North Iowa took out their frustrations on the New Ulm Steel on Saturday with a 7-0 win – seven different players scored for the Bulls in the victory, including the first North Iowa goals for Jordan Roo and Harrison Stewart. Matt Dahlseide had the big night on offense with a goal and three assists, but Connor Poczcos stole the show in net with 32 saves and his first regular-season shutout in a Bulls uniform.

NEXT HOME GAME:

North Iowa returns home on Friday, Oct. 19 to face Breezy Point and begin a seven-game homestand. The Bulls will host "Fire and Ice Night" on Friday, with free admission to area firefighters and half-price admission to their families. A hot-wing challenge will be held during the intermissions, with a firetruck bounce house for the younger fans. Saturday, law-enforcement officers will get their night on "Light it Up Night," with the same admission discounts and an intermission donut-eating contest. HORSESHOES AND HAND-GRENADES:

This past March, St. Louis came as close as it's come to a Fraser Cup championship since 2012, when the Jr. Blues made their last appearance in the NA3HL's championship game. Seven players are back from last year's Fraser Cup runner-up team, including Dante Jones, who kept up a point-per-game pace last season. In all, four players with double-digit goal totals from a year ago are back on this year's St. Louis roster.

STALEMATE:

While North Iowa leads the overall head-to-head series since the Bulls' entry into the NA3HL in 2011, wins have been hard to come by on the Jr. Blues' home rink in the last few seasons. St. Louis has won four of the six games they've played against the Bulls at the Affton Ice Rink over the last four years, including both of its home games against North Iowa last season. In the previous seven years, North Iowa and St. Louis have played 10 times in Affton, with each team coming out on top five times.

FINISH STRONG:

With the Bulls' four-goal outburst against New Ulm last Saturday in the final 20 minutes, North Iowa is up to a 10-5 scoring advantage over their opponents in the third period. Their second-period mark is even more impressive, outscoring opponents 9-2 in the middle stanza over their six games. In five outings, St. Louis has outlasted their opponents mightily, with a 14-1 scoring margin in their favor in the second period, and 15-2 in the third period. Their overtime loss at Granite City two weeks ago was their first defeat during the bonus round since a 3-2 loss on Feb. 11, 2017 at home against Peoria.

SHOOTING BLANKS:

Thanks to an opening-weekend three-game set at Evansville, the Jr. Blues are the only team in the NA3HL this season with three goaltenders who have registered a shutout. The New England Stars and Granite City Lumberjacks are the only other teams in the league with two goalies who have registered shutouts this season, and second-year Great Falls Americans backstop Drew Scites is the only goalie in the league with more than one. Heading into the first month of October, there have been 19 shutouts in the NA3HL, with four total between the two teams in this weekend set. St. Louis outscored the Jr. Thunderbolts by a total of 33-0 over those first three games of the season, using three different goaltenders in their initial road trip to Evansville.
